FAIR PLAY, GENTLEMEN. SCENT RISING OF THE CHINESE

THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT IS GUILTY OF TRYING TO OBTAIN SOMETHING UNDER FALSE PRETENSES.

Flood the Town Last Night with Copies of Yesterday's Edition Containing the Advertisement Published by Feltz Brothers & Company who are Conducting a Newspaper Contest.

O. B. Selfridge, the Bill Nye portion of the Times-Democrat, was placed in a very embarrassing position yesterday afternoon when the Feltz Brothers Dry Goods Company presented for publication in his paper an advertisement to test the circulation of the various newspapers of this city. He squirmed for a short time and then decided that there was only one way possible to make a showing and he resorted to the idea of obtaining goods under false pretenses and flooded the city with papers. Along one street in the east end one hundred people who are not subscribers to the paper received a copy of last night's edition. The Daily News played fair. Its regular daily circulation was sent out and the Management is not ashamed to give the figures.—3250—Sworn to.

SHIP SUBSIDY GOES THROUGH

Senate Passes the Mooted Measure After Prolonged Debate.

Creates Naval Reserve---Aggregate Compensation for Mail Lines About Three Million Dollars Annually---House Passes the Fortifications Appropriation Bill.

Washington, Feb. 15.—In the senate committee on interstate commerce the line between the faction which advocates the passage of the house bill and the faction contending for the court review feature has been drawn, and all thought of compromise has been abandoned. Nearly a hundred amendments to the house bill are pending before the committee, and nearly a score of these bear on the judicial review of orders made by the interstate commerce commission. It is not improbable that both factions may be willing to transfer the contest to the floor of the senate, and that no roll call will be had in the committee. After prolonged debate the senate passed the subsidy shipping bill by a vote of 38 to 27. All the votes for the bill were by Republican senators, and five Republicans voted with the Democrats in opposition. Burkett, Dilliver, La Follette, Spooner and Warner. The vote on the bill was preceded by action on a number of amendments, and this by a prolonged debate. Many important amendments were accepted, but only in one case was a modification agreed to that was not in accordance with the wishes of the managers of the bill. The exception was an amendment offered by Mr. Spooner eliminating the provision giving half pay to members of the naval reserve who have served less than six months. The bill establishes thirteen new contract mail lines and increases the subvention to the Oceanic line, running from the Pacific coast to Australasia. Of the ten new lines, three leave Atlantic coast ports, one running to Brazil, one to Uruguay and Argentina, and one to South Africa; six from ports on the Gulf of Mexico, embracing one to Brazil, one to Cuba, one to Mexico, and three to Central America and the Isthmus of Panama; four from Pacific coast ports, embracing two to Japan, China and the Philippines direct, one to Japan, China and the Philippines via Hawaii, and one to Mexico, Central America and Panama. The bill grants a subvention at the rate of $5 per gross ton per year to cargo vessels engaged in the foreign trade of the United States, and at the rate of $2.50 per ton to vessels engaged in the Philippine trade, the Philippine coastwise law being postponed until 1909. Another feature of the bill is that creating a naval reserve of 10,000 officers and men, who are to receive retainers after the British practice. Vessels receiving subsidies are requested to carry a certain proportion of naval reserve men among their crews. The aggregate compensation for mail lines is about $3,000,000 annually. No steam vessel of less than 1,000 tons is to receive aid under the bill. Bryan's Letter in Record. Washington, Feb. 15.—Incident to the passage of the fortifications appropriations bill, which was accomplished by the house, a lively debate was kept up throughout, involving the difference between the Republican and Democratic policy with reference to the Philippines, and also the difference between army and navy officers as to the place where a naval station and fortifications shall be established in the archipelago. The minority took some pains to make plain the position of Mr. Bryan in his campaign for the ratification of the Paris treaty of peace, that Mr. Bryan wanted first to acquire the Philippines and then give their inhabitants freedom. This was accomplished finally by having placed in the record a letter written by Mr. Bryan some time ago on the subject. GRANTED PATENT. R. K. Floeter, of this city, has been granted a patent on an automatic railway switch. LICENSED TO WED. Thos. E. Spencer, 21, of Lima, and Lulu Standt, 21, of Lima.

Army Officers Predict Another Outbreak at an Early Date.

Claim Truth Is Withheld---Present Movement Is for the Purpose of Establishing a New Dynasty, and Not to Oust Foreigners, According to Former Minister Conger.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—With other army officers here, Major C. A. Devol, general superintendent of the transport service in this city, shares the apprehension of their fellow officers in the far East. Major Devol said: "The awakening of China is here. There were the same rumblings heard previous to the late Boxer outbreak. Every army officer expects trouble in China. An officer who arrived here from Washington on his way to China said that he knew the war department had grave news from China, but was not making it public." The transport heads is now on her way to Manila loaded with troops. The Warren and Crook lie here ready to go into commission whenever orders come from Washington to get them ready. Former Minister Edward Conger, for many years stationed at Peking, in an interview at Pasadena, said: "I am satisfied that serious trouble will come, but do not expect that it will be directed especially against the United States, but will be against the reigning Manchu dynasty. The Manchurians are insignificant in numbers and the present uprising is for the purpose of establishing a new dynasty and not to oust foreigners. "The most violent disturbances will be in the southern provinces and will endanger all foreign interests. Americans within the zone of the rebellion are liable to be hurt before they can get out, and that is why the United States should let China know that it will not tolerate for an instant anything inimical to the interests of its citizens. "If the Chinese are impressed that we are on the alert and that we mean business our interests will be secure. If China is permitted to think it can ignore our interests, something terrible will happen. The trouble now will be a great struggle within the empire—a battle of popular majority against the dynastic minority. It has been brewing for many years, and has now apparently reached a climax."

WOULD ABOLISH THE STATE LEVY

Senator Howe Introduces His General Revenue Proposition.

Aimed at the Corporations---House Defeats Bassett's Bill Permitting Women to Vote on All School Questions---Jones Local Option Measure Reported.

Columbus, O., Feb. 15.—Mr. Howe introduced in the senate a taxation bill along the lines of the Vanover measure. It regulates the taxation of quasi-public service corporations, and provides a state franchise commission of three members, appointed by the governor, salary $6,000, which commission shall value all property of such companies for taxation at its true value in money.

Senator Howe claims his measure will provide handsomely for the state sinking fund, the university fund and the general revenue fund from the receipts of a tax of 6-10 of 1 per cent, or $6 on every $1,000 of the value of franchises held in Ohio by the quasi-public service corporations. He expects the operation of the measure will put $600,000,000 of taxable value upon the state tax duplicate, net the state an annual income of $3,600,000, abolish the state levy upon county duplications and relieve the taxpayers of the payment of $2,800,000 in taxes.

Bills passed by senate: H. B. Mr. Woods, prescribing the forms of notice of bridge contract lettings, amended so that where the cost is less than $200, notice may not be even bulletined; H. B. Mr. Hatfield, amending the law relative to the removal of driftwood, etc. from rivers and water courses; H. B. Mr. Roll, authorizing concrete substructures in bridges.

The senate adopted Mr. Hatfield's resolution calling on the auditor, secretary of state and attorney general to report various forms of compensation they receive.

Bills introduced in senate: Mr. Maiber of Summit, providing that no person shall conduct any business under a fictitious name, extreme penalty being $500, three months in jail; Mr. Criez of Columbus, extending to building and loan companies the laws at present regulating savings and loan associations; Mr. Otter of Fairport, abolishing the Hocking canal bed in Lancaster to the city for street purposes; Mr. Brandt of Franklin, requiring on all street cars a compartment for motormen completely closed on all sides so as to protect the motorman from wind, cold and storm.

Senator Howe is behind a measure to prevent bribery at elections. The bill requires all candidates who are elected at any election to file sworn statements with the clerk of the courts, giving amount of money he expended and stating whether he made any promises to secure votes. Conviction of false statement or violation of stipulations of the bill forfeits his office.

Deny Women Voice. By a vote of 62 to 51, Representative Bassett's bill extending to women the right to vote upon all questions relating to school affairs was defeated in the house.

The house adopted the resolution of Gayman of Franklin, memorializing the president of the United States to negotiate a treaty with Great Britain for the preservation of Niagara Falls. Two-thirds instead of a majority vote shall be required for the incorporation of a village, according to the provisions of the Corlett bill passed by the house.

Representative Harper's measure to prevent having in educational institutions, and to provide for the punishment of the hazers and the officers of the school if delinquent, was passed by the house. Other bills passed, by the house were: H. B. Mr. Stockwell, compelling boards of education having sinking fund commissions to offer all bond issues to the said commissioners for purchase; H. B. Mr. Thomas, permitting the attachment of extra-municipal territory to voting precincts for the purpose of securing the required quota of 50 electors, also permitting the attachment of such territory to townships outside of municipalities; H. B. Mr. Reynolds, requiring railway companies to provide for self-cleaning ash pan attachments to steam locomotives by January 1, 1907; H. B. Mr. Shankland, authorizing township trustees to levy a tax to compensate private companies or associations for maintaining a free public library; H. B. Mr. Rolf of Cuyahoga, authorizing villages to levy taxes to supply deficiencies in electric light and water works plant fund owned by the village.

The Brannock-Jones local option bill was reported to the house from the temperance committee, and it was made a special order for Feb. 22.

SANG SONGS,

Negro Students at the White House. President's Words.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, the venerable chaplain of the senate, and Booker T. Washington, principal of the Tuskegee, Ala., institute, presented to the president in the east room of the white house about thirty students of the industrial institute located at Manassas, Va. The students sang two or three songs for the president, who afterward greeted each one personally. President Roosevelt addressed them, saying in part: "It is a peculiar pleasure to meet and greet you today, and no body of our fellow citizens can have a greater claim to being received at the white house than a body like this, which stands for the fundamental duty of American citizenship, the duty of self-education. The only way in which any section of our citizens, of no matter what color, can be permanently benefited is by teaching them to pull their own weight, to do their own duty, their duty to themselves, their duty to their neighbors, their duty to the state at large."

Lawson's Statement

Boston, Feb. 15.—Thomas W. Lawson said that he had not withdrawn from the life insurance policyholders' committee, for which he collected proxies. It has been his intention all along, he said, to resign when the plans of the committee were perfected and turn the work over to the committee. The plans of organization are not yet completed, though they will be in a short time.

Surgeon's Story.

Says He Was Directed to Administer Drug to Lou Dillon.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—A sensational affidavit was made here in connection with the race at Memphis between Major Delmar and Lou Dillon. The affidavit is sworn to by A. H. Fehr, a veterinary surgeon, who claims that he was official veterinarian of the Memphis Racing association at the time the horses contested for the $5,000 gold cup. In his sworn statement he says that after the first heat he was hastily summoned by Murray Howe, personal representative of C. K. G. Billings, and directed to treat the mare for "thumps," and that acting under orders he administered a small dose of belladonna, which was sufficient to kill the speed of the strongest horse for the time being.

THE BODY'S HOUSE CLEANER

"Cleanliness is Next to Godliness," and Internal Cleanliness is the First NECESSITY of HEALTHFULNESS.

Many people who exercise the utmost care in keeping the outside of their bodies clean, do not know the first principles of keeping the inside pure and clean. To this ignorance is due nine-tenths of all chronic illness.

For example, it is so commonly believed that the blood has only one duty—to carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Yet in addition to nourishing the body the blood is also the body's housecleaner—keeping the body clean inside by carrying away all waste matter.

If the sewers of a big city become clogged and the waste matter was not carried off, a plague would result, and almost the entire population would be wiped out. Yet those same people are continually meeting the same fate, because of an accumulation of uric acid or waste matter inside their bodies—and they don't know the cause.

How to keep the body clean inside is the one great question of health. LIFE PLANT publicly teaches the way—shows the need for keeping the body clean inside and tells in a common sense way just how LIFE PLANT keeps it clean.

Uric acid is the most deadly of inside filth—the one great cause of disease. LIFE PLANT dissolves uric acid—fights and drives it out of the system. It makes the blood clean, pure and rich, and strong to do its work.

LIFE PLANT is a natural and common sense vegetable medicine. You can get it at any reputable druggist or by writing to the LIFE PLANT COMPANY, Canton, Ohio. Valuable booklet on health and expert medical advice free. Write today.

Bank Director Hangs Himself

Monticello, Ill., Feb. 15.—The dead body of William De Groff, an aged director of the First National bank of Monticello, was found hanging in his house at Mansfield, he having committed suicide. The reason assigned for the act is that the grand jury is on the eve of an investigation into the bank's affairs owing to a charge that $70,000 has been embezzled. W. O. Fairbanks, president, and L. M. Fairbanks, another director of the bank, are brothers of Vice President Fairbanks of the United States.

Fatal Railway Wreck

Janesville, Wis., Feb. 15.—Three trainmen dead, one dying, three injured and six passengers hurt were the casualties due to a head end collision between a special freight and a DeKalb passenger train on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad two miles south of Janesville. Thomas Lafferty of Baraboo, engineer; Joseph Maher, fireman, Janesville, and Fireman Bernish of Baraboo are dead. Conductor Raper of the freight train is dying. Conductor George Deran of Janesville was cut about the head and shoulders. Engineer Briscoe of Baraboo suffered a crushed foot. Mrs. Grosby of Sycamore and five other passengers were injured, but not severely. The wreck was due, it is said, to a snow storm.

Balfour Weakens

London, Feb. 15.—Former Premier Balfour has crossed the bridge which Joseph Chamberlain held out for him, and he takes his position practically on Mr. Chamberlain's tariff reform program. As though to emphasize the fact that there will be in the future a dual leadership of the Unionists, it is announced that in addition to the customary private room in the house of commons for the official leadership of the opposition only, a similar room has been allotted to Mr. Chamberlain. This is unusual, if not unprecedented.

It is not unlikely the appointment will go to Lieut. D. H. Jarvis, formerly an officer of the revenue cutter service.

A COMPARISON.

Printers' Ink Shows the Comparison Between Evening and Morning Papers—Amount of Space of Each—Week Before Christmas in New York City.

Printers' Ink in its issue of January 17, gives a very lengthy article showing the superior advertising advantages of evening papers over the morning, giving in comparisons the amount of advertising in inches of 23 of New York's great department stores such as Wannamakers, Selig & Cooper, Bloomingdale Brothers; R. H. Macy & Co.; Simpson Crawford Co.; Erich Bros.; The 14th Street Store; Frederick Lreser & Co.; Rothenberg & Co.; Abraham & Straube; H. O'Neill & Sons; Stern Bros.; Saks & Co.; A. D. Mathews & Sons; Lord & Taylor; Arnold Constable & Co.; H. C. Koch & Co.; Journey & Buhnam and John Daniel & Son, showing the amount of space each store used in the different papers.

A tabulation of the advertising of the above 23 stores carried in all the week-day issues of the New York dailies, English and German, shows that there is only one day in the week when the morning papers carry more department store advertising than the evening papers. That is Saturday. As the three evening papers of Brooklyn were eliminated from this table, a good basis for comparison is reached, because it deals with 19 morning and 10 evening papers.

Department store advertising, week Dec. 18-23.

Tuesday	1798	3729

The temporary injunction is still effective.

THEY were with them. My wife are not in the office, but I hear ominous threats. I advise you not to attempt to put the new schedule into operation at the present time.

The effect on the valley of Mackay's recital of his misadventure was most wonderful. The principal mine owners of the Springs met to discuss their campaign. The valley called for the blood of those who had dented the sacred person of their representative, and the sheriff was ordered to arrest and bring down the insolent "red necks" who had humbled the proud and confident Red Star superintendent. "This spirit of lawlessness must be checked or it will run into riot," said Barnett, who developed unexpectedly into a leader of the mine owners by virtue of his large interests in the Red Star.

The sheriff valiantly responded to the call and, with a half dozen deputies, marched up into the glittering mist of the high peaks and came down again empty handed and sullen.

A meeting of the officers of the Red Star and allied companies was called. Barnett presiding. Most resolute resolutions were passed. Mackay was instructed to press his demands to the full. Barnett naturally proposed a conference with the miners. "Either they come to our terms or we close down the mines," he said. "It is our cue to be firm in this demand."

The sheriff, who had been invited to be present and tell his tale, put in a warning word. "Gentlemen," said he, "you're dealing with a lot of free miners and prospectors—men who won't be driven and can't be scared. If it had been just a case of ignorant diggers I would have brought 'em down, but they've got leaders that you can't monkey with. When Hob Smith, Denver Dan and that devil Jack Munro met me with their holsters tied down I threw up my hands. You are from the east, where things are different. About one-third of the men on the peak are old prospectors and free miners, and if they stay by the proposition you've got to take a sneeze or put up the fight of the age."

"We stand pat," said Barnett, "and we shall insist on your arresting the men who assaulted Mr. Mackay."

The sheriff made an elaborate bow. "Right you are, Mr. Barnett, but I'll want a hundred deputies to do it with."

Moving the sheriff collected and swore in some ninety men, the boldest and hardest to be found in all the towns of the valley. They were not sedate and considerate citizens, but they were brave, or at least reckless, and without exception experienced wearers of guns. They professed themselves quite able and willing to bring down anybody in the hills. After being armed and provisioned, they were to be sent round by way of a railroad which was building toward the camp from the south.

Barnett was heedful of his words at home and made light of the probable opposition of the miners, but Louis, with a boy's ability to discern what was going on, soon acquired a pretty clear idea of the plan, and when Ann asked him not to return to the heights on Monday he was obviously calm, but asserted his right to go where he pleased.

"Rob wants me and needs me, and I'm going. You can put me in jail, but that is the only way. If there is going to be war, I am going to be in it, and I'm going to be on the side of the miners."

Ann wrote a swift and fervent note to Raymond:

I am trusting Louis to your care because he will not stay. You have won his heart from us, and we are powerless to prevent his return. Guard him, for the sake of his boyish adventures, for my sake.

She wrote no further, for as her mind dwelt upon that camp of ruffian miners and their desire for battle a bitter resolution swept over her. "I will test his love for me," with cold intensity she announced her purpose. "If you insist on going back to that camp I shall go too."

"You must not go," said Louis. "It's no place for you."

"It is no place for you," he asserted himself again. "I can take care of myself."

"Mr. Raymond has asked me to keep you here," she went to him and put her arm about his neck. "Stay with me, kiddie. I am missing you these days."

In the end she seemed to prevail, but she took no pleasure in her victory, for he went about the house like a young eagle plumed. Nothing save the news of the camp interested him, and when the time came for the sheriff to start on his new raid he became greatly excited.

"There's going to be a battle," he said to Ann. "I'm going."

"No, no," she pleaded.

He turned upon her with a resentful stamp of his heel. "I can't stay here like a kid."

She changed her tone. "Very well. When shall we start?"

He looked at her steadily, and into his eyes came a softer gleam. "I've just thought," he began reflectively, "you can stay with Mrs. Kelly till we build a wing for you. She's a nice woman and lives in the snugest little log cabin. That settles it! We'll go right away, today!"

Ann was at a loss, but did not show it. "If you are determined to go, then there is no use in waiting. Let us start at once!"

While Mrs. Barnett suggested what to wear Don ordered a carriage to take Ann and himself to the train, and Louis saddled his horse for his return trip up the stage road. "I'll beat you up," he shouted to Ann and galloped away with shining face.

The railway which ran up Bear Canyon was still building and had not yet reached the divide, so that a stage ride of some twenty miles connected the town of Grand View with Sky camp. Ann and Barnett were noticeable persons in the car, which was filled with roughly clad workmen of all kinds. Ann was conscious of their admiration for her, and it deeply annoyed her. Two or three of the better dressed men, who were on speaking acquaintance with Barnett, came up to ask him what he thought of the strike.

"I didn't know it was a strike," said he, ignoring their evident desire to be introduced to Ann.

"Oh, it's a strike all right. Your man Mackay wasn't much hurt, was he?"

"Not badly."

"He was a little too previous. I hope the sheriff won't try to do anything more about it. The boys up at Sky are a little sharp set about that business. Ain't going up there yourself, are ye?"

"Yes; I've always been on good terms with my men. I think I can help to arrange some sort of a compromise."

The two miners looked at each other. At length the older of them said in a tone that meant a good deal to express accustomed to western intonations: "Well, I reckon the whole thing has been exaggerated. My claim is just below Bozie, and so, of course, I don't know much more about Sky than you do. Still I wouldn't advise your going in at this time."

At Grand View a couple of stages met them, and as Ann waited on the platform for Don to secure a carriage she observed that on the seat of each of the coaches two guards sat, negligently nursing rifles which glittered in the sunlight. Soon the whips began to crack, and the coaches rolled away one by one, leaving Barnett to follow in a road wagon which he had hired for their own especial use.

The sun was shining to midday, and the mountains on the left was in full glory of emerald and saffron. The air was keen and crisp, the sky cloudless, and the road, except for occasional mudholes, was very good. Barnett remarked, "We ought to pull into Bozie before dark on these roads."

Night came abruptly. A thin gray scum rose swiftly on the western sky and suddenly grayed the brightness of the sun. The world grew instantly stern and cold. The road, after climbing a ridge, descended into a gorge with firs on either side, and when they came out upon the flat meadow to the northwest of Mogilyon only the lights of Skytown could be seen.

At the moment that Don was pointing out the lights two horsemen appeared in front and in the middle of the road.

"Halt!" cried a clear voice.

The driver pulled his tired horses to a stand so energetically that his hands rose above his head.

"Is Donnelly Barnett with you?" asked one of the men as he rode nearer.

"I'm Barnett. What do you want of me?" asked Don coolly.

"Not a thing," answered the horseman. "That's just it. We have no use for you, and I've been watching to meet you and say that the boys want you to continue your quiet, uneventful life at the Springs."

"Who are you?"

"We're a couple of Skytown vedettes. Who is the lady?"

"That doesn't concern you. Go on, driver."

The driver took up the reins, but the voice of the vedette grew sterner. "Stay where you are!" Then, turning to Barnett: "I'm your best friend, Donnelly. The boys understand that you are backing Mackay in his plans, and it isn't safe for you to enter the camp. I advise you to turn around right here and go back."

Ann spoke up: "Please let us go on. Mr. Barnett is taking me in to meet my brother, and I am cold and hungry."

There was something thrilling in the calm, clear sweetness of her voice, and the first of the vedettes, pressing nearer, leaned from his saddle to ask:

"Who is your brother, lady?"

"His name is Louis Rupert. He is only a boy, and I am going in to care for him."

"Rob Raymond's kid. I know him," replied the vedette. "But I thought he was visiting you in the Springs."

"He was, but he went back to the camp today, and I am very anxious about him."

"He's all right, lady, so long as Rob Raymond has him in hand. You are welcome, but Barnett is on the outside and must stay there."

"I decline to acknowledge your authority," responded Barnett, now thoroughly angry.

The horseman laughed softly, irritably. "Barnett, don't go with us at the present time. I must ask you to camp right here or go back to Grand View till I can communicate with the president of the union. If you are here to talk compromise the men will be glad to meet you, but my judgment is that you better return to Grand View. I will see that this lady gets to her brother."

Ann was not a timid girl, but the thought of riding away into the blackness of the night with these sinister guards made her flesh chill and her nerves creep. "Don't leave me, Don," she whispered.

Barnett, alarmed at the horseman, "It is impossible! If I am forced to go back she must go with me. What right have you to interfere in our plans?"

The answer came quickly, coldly, every word telling. "I'll tell you. The boys have learned that you have been chiefly instrumental in pushing the sheriff into another raid, and if trouble comes they'll kill you. It isn't safe for you to be on the hill tomorrow. Now you needn't be afraid to trust the lady to me." The vedette removed his hat. "I am not a man to be feared by women."

Ann again spoke. "I can't consent to your going into danger for me, Don. Turn back, and I will go on."

"It is madness!" he said in a low voice. "These men are not fit escorts for you. We will both go back and wait—until morning."

Ann's teeth were chattering with cold. "I dread that long drive. We must be almost at our destination."

The two horsemen conferred together, and at last one of them returned to say: "Driver, you may come on until you reach the first cabin at the foot of the hill. There the lady will get out, and you will drive Mr. Barnett back before daylight tomorrow morning."

As they drew up before the shanty door the leader of the vedettes rode forward and said gently: "Lady, the road from here to the summit is lined with cables, and no harm can possibly come to you while I have you in charge. Or, if you like, you can stay here till morning; but I would advise you to go on to Mrs. Kelly's. There is no cabin suited to your needs on this side of the peak."

Ann, stiff and weary and hungry, rose in her seat with a sort of desperation. "I will go," she said with trembling voice.

The vedette, dismounting quickly, helped her to the ground, while the second man, leaning low on his horse, entered into a muttered conversation with an unknown man in the doorway.

Barnett argued and insisted on going on to Kelly's.

"Not one step farther!" sternly commanded the vedette. "But you can sleep here till daylight if you wish."

Ann interposed. "Don, I beg of you to go home. I don't want you to go any farther. I am not afraid now. This man will take me to Mrs. Kelly's. I'm sure of it, and Louis will be there by this time, and Mr. Raymond."

"Sure thing, lady. And it isn't late—no more than 7 o'clock. We'll almost get there in time for supper. Can you ride a horse?"

"Yes."

"Well, I will put you on my saddle, and I will walk and lead the horse."

The light from the doorway fell upon him as he approached her, and the sight of his boyish face reassured her.

As Barnett saw her rise to the saddle he burst out: "This is preposterous! You must not go up there. The boy isn't worth it. I'm going with you or fight!" He drew his revolver, but some one caught his hand from behind and twisted the weapon out of his grasp.

"Go on, Jack. We'll take care of him," called the man in the cabin door.

As the light of the lamp was left behind and the darkness settled round her a convulsive terror seized upon the girl. The horse, stumbling over loose rocks in the road, which ran back and forth on the hillside like folds of broad, passed now and again under dark and silent pines.

Once, as her guard came back toward her, something rose in her throat, some elemental dread, and her breath quivered through her lips. "If Robert only knew my need of him," she thought. "He would surely come to me."

Ann responded to the humility which shadowed the hearty voice of her hostess, and, though she shivered in the chill air, answered cheerily: "I'm sure this is very nice."

"It is a real place for you to live, Miss Rupert," he said, "but there is no danger. The strike has not involved us. We are as peaceful as a farm here."

She smiled back into his eyes with more of liking than she had ever expressed.

"I am not afraid," she replied. "I am going to find the camp interesting. At any rate, so long as Louis is settled in his determination to be a miner, I must keep him in sight."

"It is a great pleasure to have him with me, and I am glad to be of use to him, for his own sake as well as for what you have come to mean to me."

Ann's lashes fell before the glow of his admiring eyes, and with this sign of weakness a flush of resentment again passed over her. "He must not look at me in that way," she complained to herself.

When Raymond left the house to walk back to his own cabin he presented for the first time the appearance of Louis. He wished to be alone with the mysterious emotion which had swept back upon him at sight of Ann. He faced the night, out of which every shred of vapor had vanished, and the blue-black vault, blazing with innumerable jetting globes of light, invited to high thoughts, to serious imaginings.

His duty plainly was to lay hands upon the lad and hustle him back to Valley Springs and so put both brother and sister out of his life; but this was not easy. He argued that she was in no danger and that the change of air would do her good. "She will be interested in the mines," he went on in formless debate with himself. "The scenery is magnificent; and then, of course, she can go down at any time we think wise."

MEETING

Of the Allen County Agricultural Society

WAS HELD IN THIS CITY YESTER-DAY—WAS THE FIRST SES-SION OF THE NEW BOARD.

The new Board of the Allen County Agricultural Society held their first meeting in this city yesterday, and planned work for the coming year.

Of general importance was the preparation for the public of the proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws. In fact if these amendments are adopted the board will be placed on a firm business footing, and have a chance to redeem its greatness of by-gone days. These amendments briefly stated are as follows:

First—No entrance fee for Allen county exhibits.

Second—Abolishment of all passes.

Third—That the board shall be constituted of fifteen members, one each from the townships and three members from the city of Lima.

Fourth—That the annual election of directors shall be held the last Saturday in January of each year.

This last change is made to conform with the state law, such election having previously been held during the society's annual fair.

At the meeting of the newly elected officers, President J. W.
Shannahan, presided for the first time, and Secretary C. A. Graham, filed his bond as such official in the sum of $5,000, as did the new treasurer, Mr. Kirby White.

By unanimous vote, two committees only will have the power to contract debts, and these will be the executive and advertising committees, the personnel of which was announced as follows:

Executive Committee—J. W. Shan-nahan, chairman; Beegh Graham and Louis J. Kepler.

Advertising Committee—C. A. G.
Graham, chairman, N. W. Cunningham, Bluffton; Chris. Louth, Spencerville.

President Shannahan also announced the following chairmanships for the different departments: Horses,
G. R. Fetter; speed, ring, Kirby White; cattle, J. A. States; sheep and swine, U. M. Cochran; fruits, flowers and household productions,
W. H. Wait; poultry and manufactures, L. M. Baker; machinery and agricultural implements, Thos.
Grubb; farm products, R. Teegarden; fine arts, N. W. Cunningham; educational, C. A. Graham; merchandise, L. J. Kepler; police, Beegh Graham, location, C. Louth.

The board re-affirmed this year's fair dates—September 11th to 15th, and adjourned to meet Saturday March 3rd.

It's a mistake to imagine that ticking piles can't be cured; a mistake to suffer a day longer than you can help. Doan's Ointment brings instant relief and permanent cure. At any drug store, 50 cents.

WINTER TRIPS TO COLORADO

Cheaply made because of the "winter tourist" rates now in effect.
The Rocky Mountain region offers:
Dry, clear climate.
Plenty of sunshine.
A tonic atmosphere.
A "snap" in the air that makes you want to be "up and doing."

Wonderously beautiful mountain scenery.
The Rock Island is the road to take to Colorado—lands you directly in Denver or Colorado Springs, as desired.

Some pronounced advantages in our train service, also.
Let me inform you.

Bowling Green, Feb. 15.—Having obtained a marriage license Monday only to find his sweetheart had left with a colored man, Peter Agger, a painter, returned an unused marriage license and asked for his money back at the probate office.

It appears from Agger's story that a woman of this place, who had been married several times and is Agger's senior by about eight years, consented to marry him.

Monday afternoon he went for the license and while he was getting it his Mary left the city in company with a negro.

All of Agger's endeavors to locate his runaway sweetheart have been unavailing and he is now figuring on how to recover his two dollars.
